SECOND LONG RANGE PLAN APPROVED

Miles: Plan is "proactive"

by David G. Logemann

The UB Board of Trustees approved a new five-year plan for the university on October 16th. The plan, known as LRP-2, is designed to expand UB's reputation as a career preparation school. In addition, the plan aims at maintaining the fiscal strength of the university.

A fact sheet provided by the UB Communications Office states that "cooperative education, career-oriented programs and job placement are the centerpieces of each of UB's six colleges." President Leland Miles termed the plan "proactive," saying "our first planning effort in 1978 was reactive to the need for reducing costs. This plan is proactive. It maps the way for UB to become the best at what we already do well, namely career preparation."

Under LRP-2, the Co-op program will be centralized and expanded. The number of students in the program will be increased from 500 to 1,500, and the number of cooperating corporations from 250 to 325.

President Miles said, "From our marketing surveys, we know that UB has an image as a good career preparation school. The new plan addresses the important questions: where do we want to go and how do we get there?"

In addition to academic concerns, the plan calls for expanded computer capability in both classrooms and administrative offices, and expansion of the student recruitment market beyond the New England area.

LRP-2 also includes physical improvements to the campus. Among these are the development of a pedestrian mall linked to Bridgeport's "Gateway to the Sound" project, and enhancement of the appearance of the university.

The Law School is to see expansion of Admissions Office staff and the development of a pilot cooperative education plan. Creation of Stamford Graduate Center is intended to serve as the "hub" of off-campus activities. The staff of the Part-Time Studies Office will be merged with the Metropolitan College by Fall, 1988.

Miles said that all elements of the university contributed to the planning process. Students, faculty and administrators participated through committees of the University Senate, submitting suggestions for the plan. Miles said the Student Council, Faculty Council and Deans' Council reacted that the initial draft of the plan before the Board of Trustees reviewed the final planning document.

COUNTDOWN TO THE SHOWDOWN

by Steve Kavanagh

The sun is nearing its apex and the two adversaries are slowly, but surely advancing to their respective positions on the battlefield. Both appear cool, calm and collected on the outside. It's a good bet, though, that inside a few butterflies are bouncing around because when the smoke clears there is a good chance that one of them may be through for the season.

The UB and University of New Haven soccer teams, both ranked in the nation's top 20, are heading toward their long-awaited showdown Saturday at Dodd's Field in West Haven.

The Chargers, who lost their bid for a national championship in a controversial game during the final four last season, have struggled lately after cruising through the first four weeks of the season.

New Haven had dropped three straight going into Wednesday's match against a tough Keene State squad.

UB is 3-1-1 in New England Collegiate Conference play while the Chargers are 2-1. New Haven still must play the Nation's top ranked Division II team Southern Connecticut State University.

It is generally acknowledged that the top two teams in the NECC will gain a berth in the NCAA playoffs. It is also a good bet that a team with two or more losses in the conference will be lining up for basketball tickets in November instead of competing.

If UB loses to the Chargers they may finish as low as fourth in the conference standings. Assuming New Haven loses to Southern, the Knights would trail New Haven thanks to a tie with Quinnipiac on opening day.

Last week the Knights disposed of Bryant College, 3-1, at Seaside Park. Bryant hung tough but the visitors could not overcome the disparity in talent between the two teams.

John Shepherd opened the scoring in the first half by out-hustling two Bryant defenders and booting the ball past a beleaguered goaltender.

Janos Kanczler and Mark Vanston both tallied on the second half.

Kanczler scored in a scramble when his shot deflected off a Bryant defender.

The visitors from Smithfield, R.I., got one back on a five header off a textbook cross.

Vanston iced the contest moments later when he headed one home off a Bill Manning corner kick.

Southern, New Haven and Bridgeport were the preseason favorites for post season berths in the NCAA Northeast Region. But hold the phone, C.W. Post, with wins over New Haven and UB, and a spot in the Division II top 20, may have a shot. And don't write off New Hampshire College just yet. The Penmen

HOW LRP-2 AFFECTS YOU

ARTS AND HUMANITIES

- The humanities and social sciences in support of the professional schools.
- Emphasis on teacher preparation, combining a specific major with a minor in teaching methods.
- Expansion of "work-oriented" minors featuring cooperative education (e.g. an art major combined with a minor in graphic design or advertising).
- Creation of an advisory council of renowned authors, poets and historians to enhance the college's visibility.

BUSINESS AND PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

- Integration of business curriculum with engineering, law and health technologies.
- Creation of a Center for Venture Management dedicated to the teaching of venture techniques and venture capital formation.
- Realignment of the college's advisory council to include small businessmen and venture capitalists.
- Transformation of the Master's Degree in business administration into more specialized programs in management information systems, accounting and finance.

HEALTH SCIENCES

- Development of a Family Studies Center.
- Creation of a health sciences core program to introduce emerging health trends, provide management training and explore gerontology or lifespan development.
- Improvement of equipment in the Nursing Building with the addition of medical technology equipment and computers.
- Establishment of a faculty development program to enhance integration of computers into curriculum.

SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING

- Rehabilitation of the Technology Building and Dana Hall to improve classroom and laboratory facilities.
- Expansion of research grants and staff of the Industrial Research Corporation within the Connecticut Technology Institute.
- Maintenance of national accreditation from the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology.
- Establishment of graduate majors in computer science and computer engineering.

STUDENT COUNCIL RECAP

At the Student Council meeting of October 16th, it was announced that the Faculty Council has drafted what they term "a modest proposal" to reject LRP-2. No official Student Council reaction has been announced yet.

Science and Engineering Senator Dave Dunlap announced that the Core Committee will be discussing LRP-2 at the next Committee meeting, October 25th. He also mentioned the Core retreat, scheduled for November 15th. The retreat will include three students from each college.

CPBM Senator Chris Ledoux told council that he is working on release forms for professors to make public the faculty evaluation results.

In other business, Freshman President Ray Walters suggested that a gesture of appreciation be made to Sacred Heart University and the Jewish Community Center for their assistance during Hurricane Gloria.

Council's budget balance is now $32,179.05.

MORE VIOLENCE IN S. AFRICA

More violence erupted in South Africa last weekend. This came after the execution of a black, Benjamin Moloise, who

Last Friday, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland and Iceland approved new measures to cut trade with South Africa. Measures agreed on included a ban on government for clemency, but their pleas went ignored. The fighting was the first time blacks have fought back police on white territory. President Botha said he will not talk to the African National Congress because it advocates violence. Last Friday, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland and Iceland approved new measures to cut trade with South Africa. Measures agreed on included a ban on government for clemency, but new investments into South Africa and to end imports of the South African Gold Krugerrands and the export of computer equipment.

ITALIAN PRIME MINISTER RESIGNS

Italian Prime Minister Bettino Craxi resigned last week after disagreement on the handling of the Achille Lauro hijackers. Mr. Craxi will act as caretaker Prime Minister. Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini pulled his party out of the Cabinet to protest Craxi's decision of allowing Palestinian Mohammed Abbas to leave the country.

President Reagan sent an envoy to Italy and Egypt to mend the damage done as a result of the hijacking.

We have yet to know what effect Craxi's resignation will have on United States-Italian relationships.

As we go to press, Craxi is acting as Prime Minister. Negotiations continue on the formation of a new multi-party cabinet.

ECONOMY RISES

The economy grew 3.3% in the third quarter of 1985. This was a 1.4% rise since the second quarter of 1985. Economists credit this to the low finance rates for automobiles in the past few months.

The unemployment rate rose by .15 to 7.0% in the third quarter. What this means is that there are 8,274,000 Americans without jobs.

Ask most beer drinkers and they'll likely agree: nothing tastes better than beer from a keg.

Ever since the days young men delivered bucket-fuls to your door, keg beer has always been fresher. That's because it isn't cooked to preserve it like most bottled and canned beers.

Well, now we've found a way to deliver the same fresh draft taste in a bottle. A beer specially cold-filtered instead of cooked, so it tastes like it was drawn straight from the keg.

NEW DIRECTOR OF BERNHARD CENTER SEES POTENTIAL

by David G. Logemann

Betsy Brininger, new Director of the Bernhard Center for the Arts and Humanities, says she took the job for the challenge. She said UB is in a "wonderful location," in an area where the arts are all around.

"Bridgeport," she says, "is a community on the rise. It's exciting to be part of the upswing movement."

Brininger says her priority now is to promote "a sense of awareness about what we're doing here." She describes the academic programs as phenomenal, but says, "The campus itself has no idea what goes on at the Bernhard Center. Developing an awareness of the vitality is something that we're really working toward as a first goal."

When asked for an example of this vitality, she quickly pointed out several. She said, "The Bach Festival is an amazing breadth of art. The Carlson Gallery is a hidden gem, with shows of national and international importance. There's a certain amount of risk-taking in the Theater Department. It takes a certain amount of courage to open your season with something unknown like Fire."

Brininger says the Bernhard Center has to reach beyond the campus. "What I see us having," she said, "is a mission to serve the educational community, the Bridgeport community, particularly the South End. We have a greater community. Fairfield County. We have a drawing power to New Haven and Norwalk."

The way to draw an audience, she says, is to identify one audience. She explained that she would be using a "values of lifestyle" program that identifies values important to the individual or group of individuals.

Of course, she is not forgetting the university itself. She said, "We are very interested in students—it's a resource for them."

SQUIRT, SQUIRT, YOU'RE DEAD!

by Blair Murphy

Schine Hall is holding the year's first game of Assassin. Regulation water guns were distributed. Each participant was given his first assignment: equipped only with their trusty gun and a name, he is to hunt down his victim (another assassin player) and kill him in cold blood. When this mission is completed, the young James Bond is expected to hunt down the next victim. The name is given him for the person he has just shot.

Sounds easy, right? In the bag. A pinch. Good as dead. No problem, Joe.

But don't forget the paranoia. When you accept the role of assassin you also realize that someone else is out there, hunting you down. You quickly learn you can trust no one. Strange voices call in the middle of the night, whispering, "I know your every move. You are a dead man."

It's time you got a little sadistic yourself. you prowl the halls and give other players the eye. You leave an anonymous note on someone's door (merely an 'X' will provoke curiosity). Who is this young woman I'm supposed to kill? I've never heard of her. Why is that forehead and eyeball looking at me? I'm out of water. Fear and adrenalin—time to run.

The bottom line is that Assassin is a very positive thing for this school. The brainchild of Shari Militzer and Debbie Herbst, this sober social event is a perfect solution for underage freshmen too young to enter bars, helps people meet one another, and best of all, alleviates tension during mid-terms. All this (even though it's only for one week) for the price of a dollar and the ability to pull a trigger.

Ya know, failure is setting in around campus like AIDS is in the homosexual community.

King Cook has once again brushed aside all challenges as if they were a few mere harmless mosquitos.

One persistent peasant was three-for-four but choked again.

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS:

1. Bert Campaneris is the Oakland A's all-time total-base leader.

2. Many of you peasants may recall the New York Rangers-Boston Bruins famous trade during the mid-1970s. The Rangers received Phil Esposito and Carol Vadnais in exchange for Jean Ratelle, Brad Park and whom?

3. Darryl Sittler, then of the Toronto Maple Leafs, scored 10 points in a single game against the Boston Bruins during the 1975-76 season.

4. Lanny Poffo is the brother of Randy "Macho Man" Savage. These two fine athletes are also the sons of a former professional wrestler.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTIONS.

1. What player appeared in both the 1983 and 1984 World Series?

2. Many of you peasants may recall the New York Rangers-Boston Bruins famous trade during the mid-1970s. The Rangers received Phil Esposito and Carol Vadnais in exchange for Jean Ratelle, Brad Park and whom?

3. Who led the American League in pinch hit home runs during the 1984 season?

4. Only one pitcher has ever recorded playoff-clinching victories in both leagues. Name him.

Entries must be submitted to the Scribe office by Sunday evening. Look for the Trivia box at Marina dining hall.

have been in the top 20 all season despite being humiliated by UB, 5-0. New Hampshire put itself back in the picture with a victory over New Haven Saturday. The Penmen could control their own destiny — they face Southern on Saturday.

The volleyball team has cooled off a bit after a sizzling start.

Last week the squad lost to both Yale and New Haven. The team performed well, however, at a tournament hosted by Vassar College on Saturday.

Coach Lynn Keckman's club squared off against West Point Tuesday and will play Queens and Marist on Friday. Monday the team visits Mercy and Wednesday the squad is on the road for matches with C.W. Post and St. Francis.

The tennis team wrapped up its season at home this past Monday. Fairfield University provided the opposition.

Coach Phil Leibrock's team competed at the New England Tennis Tournament hosted by Bentley College (Waltham, Mass.) last weekend.

No. 1 singles player Beth Wachtel, seeded No. 2 in the tournament, dropped a close match to the tourney's No. 1 seed.

Last week the team topped Brooklyn College, 7-1, but fell to the University of Hartford, 5-4.

The team is 8-3 on the season going into the match with Fairfield.

The men's and women's basketball teams began official practice last week.

UB boasts both the men's and women's NECC coaches of the year in Bruce Webster and Don Foust.

Both teams enjoyed their finest campaign in recent years last season.

Former UB hoop star Manute Bol is creating a stir in the National Basketball Association.

Bol, now a member of the Washington Bullets, has impressed NBA players and coaches with his shot blocking ability in preseason play.

Bol's victims include Bill Cartwright of the New York Knicks and Kevin McHale and Bill Walton of the Boston Celtics.
